FAVORS THOROUGH CLEANING OF CITY

Ogden's Superintendent of Public Parks Believes Exercise Begins at Home.

Special to The Tribune.
OGDEN, March 31.—B. Vande Schuit, superintendent of Ogden's public park system, is the latest advocate of the "municipal cleaning day" as now proposed by several of the leading women of the city. The park superintendent is not only in favor of such a day, but believes that municipal improvement along these lines could be carried much farther. He declares that it would be of much more value to the city and the children themselves if they were induced to interest themselves in the improvement of their school grounds instead of being taught to climb mountains and carry camp equipment over rough roads.

The grounds of the public schools in Ogden are very much in need of improvement, according to Mr. Vande Schuit. He is sure a great good could be accomplished if the students would spend a few minutes each day to the cleaning and culture of flowers, trees and shrubbery. To furnish an incentive, he proposes a competition among the schools of the city, prizes to be awarded for the best kept grounds. This feature of the plan, states Mr. Vande Schuit, has been very successfully carried out throughout the east and in foreign countries.

POLICE WILL WORK IN HUNT FOR BRIDE

No Trace Is Found of Ogden Woman Who Wedded Aged Man and Disappeared.

Unless the whereabouts of Mrs. Bertha Backman Lee, who married S. D. Lee, forty years her senior, last Thursday and left him an hour later after gaining possession of deeds to $4000 worth of the bridegroom's property, is made known today, the police will take a hand in the case.

POLICE WILL WORK IN HUNT FOR BRIDE

At a late hour last night the girl was still missing from her home and the anxious bridegroom had learned nothing to indicate where she may be stopping. A report reached the police station yesterday afternoon that Lee had threatened to kill J. W. Carrigan, brother-in-law of his bride, unless Carrigan would produce the girl. Detectives Hugh Glenn and W. C. Zeese were assigned to look into the report. They went to Lee's home at 230 L street and encountered Carrigan in the act of entering the front gate. He was warned against precipitating trouble and left without entering the house.

POLICE WILL WORK IN HUNT FOR BRIDE

Lee was not at home, nor could the officers locate him in the neighborhood. He is said to have gone to Farmington to interview Charles Backman, father of his bride. Backman declared last night that he had seen nothing of his daughter nor her newly acquired husband since last Thursday, when the ceremony was performed.

POLICE WILL WORK IN HUNT FOR BRIDE

Lee is now openly charging Carrigan with having a hand in the affair. He alleges that Carrigan is keeping the girl in hiding and reiterates his belief that the girl is playing a passive part in the plot. The police declared last night that unless the girl is found today they will investigate Lee's charges that she is held in duress by her relatives. As yet the officers have taken no cognizance of the affair other than to look into the charge that Carrigan is alleged to have made against Carrigan.
